WHY MUST WE BE FOOLISH?

LEAGUE

News from Washington is puzzling. You are told that we plan to forgive our European debtors, if they will promise to cut down their armaments.

Why do we do that?

First we lent them $10,000,000,000 to complete the job of butchering each other. Now we plan to make them a present of the $10,000,000,000, if they will cut down their armaments for future butchery. Can you understand that?

What right has anybody to saddle $10,000,000,000 more on American taxpayers, in order to make European nations kind, gentle and loving toward each other?

Does it make any difference to us how much they war, or fight, assuming that next time, we should have brains enough to keep out of what does not concern us?

Does anyone doubt that money due us, and not paid, would be used in Europe for the very armaments that we seek to discourage?

The best way to discourage European armaments is to make Europe pay what she owes. If she does that, she will have less for big guns and poison gas.

Let us collect our billions from as many of our dear friends as are not "weathers," and use the money to make this nation secure with air fleets, submarines, a full assortment of explosives, and gasses, such as we should need, in case of attack.

The business of the American government is to protect America, not to be a wet nurse, or dry nurse to Europe. Do you thing an European nation is worrying about our welfare?

Why can't we attend to our own business? So we elect officials to protect Europe?

The truth is, our international financiers stupidly loaded themselves with their customers with foreign bonds, as unsafe as lottery tickets, now dropping in value. High finance wants foreign debts cancelled in order that nations of foreign governments with taxes lightened, may have cash to pay private debts in America.

The plan is to make the people sacrifice $1,000,000,000 in debts that reckless financiers and fools that bought worthless bonds in Europe, may get their money back.

And in the end, they would not get it back. Europe's plan is first to cancel the war debts, then to scale down or wipe out the private debts.

Those that see this column have read many warnings against the purchase of doubtful foreign bonds. Why should the people be taxed to make good such foolishness?

The Colorado psychopathic hospital is studying a strange case of catalepsy. An unfortunate man stands rigid, hour after hour, his arms outstretched, never moving. He was found in that condition in a corn field, his hallucination making him believe himself a scarecrow.

Science will deal with him, and perhaps cure him.

But who or what will cure this nation that assumed a scarecrow

QUAKERS UPSET DOPE TO DEFEAT WARREN ELEVEN

Salem High Gridders Win
13-7 Decision Over
Ancient Rivals

CARPENTER AND SIDINGER SCORE

55-Yd. Run by Ed. Beck
Makes Possible Team's Winning Score

The new football product of Salem High school, a gridiron eleven previously ranked among the district's doubtful aggregations was paraded as a powerful combination of iron-hearted determination as the lads of the Quaker City beat down a strong Warren Harding squad, 13-7, in a spectacular encounter at Warren Friday night.

Great Victory For Salem

In every sense was the victory a great triumph for the Red and Black picked to lose to the Trumbull countians by a decisive margin as the two teams entered the gridiron for the fray. A new style Quaker football machine, one which performed with finesse and early beat its way to a two touch-down advantage, was displayed to more than 6,000 spectators, among whom were approximately 500 of their home town fans.

The contest was every bit as hard fought as the close score indicates with one team holding an edge at one point of the fracas and the other gaining later advantages. Salem piled up a 13-0 edge in the second quarter when it scored both of its touchdowns while Warren was able to cross the invaders' goal stripe only in the third session.

Entire Team Stars

All eleven of the Salem players formed a hard-fighting machine for Pierre Hill's battlers to overcome but Ed Beck, the Quaker triple-threat star and captain, was the particular thorn in the Warren side. He was aided by fine interference from three ball-carrying colleagues, Konnett, Keyes and Carpenter, and a hard-hitting forward wall that outplayed the opposition in the greater portion of the contest.

The Quakers started their march towards victory early in the first period following Ed Raymond's kick-off to Dowdell, Warren end, who carried the ball five yards to his own 30 before being stopped. Three consecutive Warren plays failed to net a yard and Sfera pointed to Konnett who returned the ball 10 yards to the Salem 28.

Ed Beck and Gordon Keyes, the latter playing his first game at backfield in his scholastic grid career, were halted on successive tries through the line but on a third attempt Keyes broke through for an eight-yard smash. Beck's three yards gave the Red and Black a first down and Warren helped out with an off-side on a following play. Carpenter was tossed for a five-yard loss and a pass failed.

Beck Kicks 55 Yards

Beck booted a beautiful spiral 55 yards over Warren's goal and the Trumbull countians started off on a dash that was featured by a great 18-yd. run by his swivel-hipped quarterback, Burkhardt. Canzonetta gained only three yards in as many tries and Sfera kicked to Konnett. Beck calling signals for the Quakers, caught Warren napping when he called Keyes back for a kick, the latter left-footing the spiral 45 yards back to the opponents' 20. Warren again failed to gain necessary yardage as Salem's line displayed great power and Sfera's kick was partially blocked. It was downed by Beck on the Salem 40. Carpenter, Beck and Keyes alternated at ball-toting responsibilities, getting four straight first downs to bring the pigskin to the Warren 21. Beck again caught the opposition.

Landlady's Love Affairs are Probed

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 10. — The love affairs of a boarding house proprietor today were under scrutiny of police investigating the murder of Nick Dunovic, whose body was found near here with a stab wound in the stomach.

Meanwhile detectives are unraveling a maze of 21 small insurance policies, 12 of them payable to the boarding house proprietor. Police Chief Frank Cunningham, of Campbell, near which city the body was found, turned over to Youngstown police a report that the woman had put a new border above Dunovic in the house. Dunovic objected to the change, Cunningham said he had learned. The man has the reputation of "being handy with a knife" Cunningham said.

So far police have been told that the woman in the case has had at least three husbands. Police also turned their attention to the death last February of Vaso Besside a former boarder. His head was crushed. A verdict of accidental death was returned.

BARLOW ORDERS DRIVER'S ARREST

Child Sustains Fractured Skull and Internal Injuries

Martha Ellen Hively, six, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hively, west of Salem, is dying in Alliance City hospital today from injuries sustained when she was struck by an automobile on the Salem-Alliance rd, west of here, at 3:20 p. m. Friday.

Skull Is Fractured

The girl sustained a crushed skull and internal injuries when she was struck by an automobile operated by John W. Pressley, 36, of 763 East Columbia st., Alliance. Pressley is being held in the Alliance City jail on request of William J. Barlow.

The girl was walking east on the north side of the highway, Route 19, and started to cross the road, enroute to the home of her parents. Pressley, also driving east towards Salem, struck the child as she neared the center of the highway, police reported.

She was knocked to the pavement and crushed by the rear wheels of the car which careened off the highway and turned over. Pressley escaped with minor bruises. The girl was rushed to the Alliance hospital where little hope is held for her recovery today.

Pressley Arrested

Pressley was placed under arrest following a conference between Sheriff Barlow of Columbiana county and Coroner T. C. McQuate of Stark county. It was determined the accident occurred in Columbiana county.

Request For Road Directions Costs Indiana Man $100

Salem's city hall is generally recognized as a storehouse of information for motorists but it is a mighty poor place for the intoxicated to come to for directions.

So Ralph Snoddy, Indiana truck driver, found out today when he paid out a fine of $100 and costs na a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Snoddy, according to a report filed with Police Chief T. W. Thompson by Patrolmen Wilbur Hiddison and Edward Pilger, drove his truck to city hall, parking in the middle of East State st, from where he shouted loudly, demanding information as to the correct route to New York City.

The patrolmen walked to the truck, volunteered the required information but also censured Snoddy for his disorderly method of inquiry. The result—Snoddy was lodged in city jail with the driving while drunk charge filed against him. He entered a plea of guilty.

Romance in Old Quilt's History

200-year-old covering made by girl, about to wed; lover dies, quilt is never used

That romance figures in the history of one of the oldest quilts in Salem was brought to light through the display of attractive quilts, some of them a century and more old, at the recent fall festival in the city.

Owned By Mrs. S. F. Cone

This quilt, said to be about 200 years old, is owned by Mrs. S. F. Cone, 152 East Fifth st, and was given to her by Miss Florence Keen now deceased, a daughter of Louis and Joanna Keen, who were among the city's oldest residents.

The quilt is made of flowered oil calico of star design, in several colors. It was made by a young woman while she was on a boat trip down the Ohio river, in anticipation of her marriage. Her lover died and her sentiment's sake the quilt was never used. It came through relatives into the family of Louis Keen.

The quilt exhibited by Mrs. John King, North Ellsworth ave.

Air Liner Piloted by Robot

Eighteen passengers flying serenely over Newark, N. J., felt perfectly safe as these pictures were snapped, despite the fact that there was no human pilot at the controls. The huge air transport ship was being guided by a "robot" flier in the form of a special type of gyroscope. Aeronautical experts, after the test which was the first of its kind, predicted that a time will come when passenger transport planes will be flown largely by "robots." Howard Elliott, air company executive, is shown (lower) about to press the button which will pilot the mechanical device to work piloting the plane.

HOOVER PLANS TO STRENGTHEN RAILROAD BONDS

End of Spectacular Week
Leaves Financial World Agape

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—An economically spectacular week ended today with part of President Hoover's business restoration program nearing fruition and another joint added to strengthen railroad securities.

Greatly encouraged over the sentiment engendered by his proposals made public Tuesday night for bettering credit conditions, the chief executive is making an exhaustive inquiry into possible means of raising the investment value of railroad bonds.

Put Savings Into Bonds

Hundreds of savings banks and mutual savings associations, particularly in the west, have put money into these bonds because of decreased demands for loans. Due to declining value of the securities, many of them are threatened with being removed from the eligible list for purchase by savings banks.

At the same time, the depreciation in their market value has placed the banks in a position of being unable to dispose of their assets without a loss.

Mr. Hoover has undertaken the expanded inquiry with a feeling that the emergency $500,000,000 credit corporation which private bankers have organized will be far-reaching in its power to restore normal processes of credit and increase purchasing power.

Program Supported

He is particularly impressed with the support given his program by senators and representatives who attended his conference Tuesday and believes that from the meeting evolved a major legislative program.

It was only a week ago that the President, after long discussions with both administrative and private advisers, decided to go forward with his encompassing proposals. Since then day by day events have followed one another with a speed that has left the financial world agape.

RECEIPTS MAY HIT MILLION FIGURE

Some Fretting St. Louis
Fans Off Gabby For
Using Derringer

By FRANK G. MENKE

International News Service Sports Editor

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—Those with minds that have sinister quirks are very fretted with Gabby Street today and vow that they simply will not be present at the ball park this afternoon to see the final act in the world series of 1931.

But there are enough who still think kindly of the Cards to make it certain that this series will attract more than $1,100,000 into the baseball coffers.

Pass Million Mark

The anticipated receipts for today are about $165,000. The total for the first six games is $948,558. Add today's potential "take" and you skate right up alongside $1,135,558. The all-time record is $1,207,864 made by the Cardinals and Yankees in 1926. The other "cover a million series" were: 1925 Senators and Pirates, $1,182,854; 1924, Giants and Senators, $1,093,104; 1923, Giants and Yankees, $1,063,815.

Yes, indeed, plenty of the town-folk are all "off" Gabby "for life." They claim he could have shot "Wild Bull" Hallahan Friday and clinched the championship. They accuse him of taking "an unnecessary gamble" with Paul Derringer and after that they deride to the highest heavens and ask answer to the riddle of why Gabby didn't derick Derringer much earlier in the fifth inning before the fearful damage was done.

Even Money Wagers

The wagering on the last brawl of 1931 is even money and take your pick. The students think that the Cards have a slight edge for several reasons. First of all, they are surrounded by a home crowd. Secondly, they have an unbeaten pitcher in Hallahan or Grimes. They have whipped Earnshaw and lost to him on the other occasion only because he pitched one of the greatest games exhibited in many years.

"We're in stride again" they say, "and when we get into motion we'll run over anything that's in our way. Connie wants a third consecutive world's championship to round out his career and we'll go through the doors of hell today to give it to him."

Fairview School Names P.T.A. Heads

Mrs. Willis McArthur was elected president of the Parent-Teacher association of the Fairview school at a meeting Friday evening at the schoolhouse, south of the city.

Here are the committees: Social—Roy John, James Thomas and Harry Vincent; entertainment—Miss Phoebe Nye, teacher of the school; Mrs. James Thomas, Mrs. Samue Hillard.

A play, "Too Much Borrowing" was presented by a group of women including Mrs. Edward Grubbs, Mrs. David Astry, Mrs. Norman Muntz, Mrs. Homer Dickinson, Mrs. F. A. Rinehart, Mrs. Ralph Huston and Mrs. Willis McArthur.

Songs were contributed by members of 4-H club members. Lunch was served. The association will hold its meetings on the second Friday evening of each month.

Woman Is Pardoned

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10.—Governor White has pardoned Eva Forester, Lorain, convicted July 24, on a charge of liquor possession.

She has been in the Lorain City jail in default of a $300 fine.

All "Jake" Now

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 10.—After "Pep" Martin fell down on me so hard today, there just ain't much to talk about except Mr. Hoover and his relief for frozen assets.

We had heard of all kinds of relief: drought, grasshopper and potato bug, but the general run of us didn't know that these frozen assets were in such bad shape till this plan came along. In fact, we didn't know what a frozen asset was, but now everything is clear.

If you got a little frozen asset in your house, why the Federal Reserve will take it over. Everything "jake" now.

Yours,

PLAYING WITH FIRE

BY WILLIAM McLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS

Lee Reynolds is the owner of a ranch which brought him almost ruined. She leaves a Mexican rancho and moves her starving herd there. She is barely settled when a revolution breaks out. Megares, boy man of the border is the leader. Ransie Brennan, a former foreman of Lee's, is his right hand man. Brennan was discharged by Lee and swore revenge. Lee hires a new hand, who is recognized by Dunc Daggett, an old ranch helper, as Jack Hadley, a millionaire oil man of California, whose father owned a mine near Lee's ranch and was murdered by outlaws. Hadley is searching for the murderer of his father. Hadley and Lee call on Megares, who is, apparently friendly to them. Megares calls at the ranch for dinner and is infatuated with Lee's guest, Mrs. Doris Silver. Next day while out driving Lee and her ranchers are attacked by a band of soldiers. Megares comes to live at the rancho, to protect them, he says, though they really are his prisoners. Doris is rescued by airplane by her husband. Lee refuses to leave her ranchers—and Jack Hadley, whom she loves.

INSTALLMENT 22 "What Are You Going To Do With Me?"

After the girls, metamorphosed into dusky young Mexican maidens, had left the house on their way to the plane Jack waited in a stress of anxiety the result of their adventure. He did not pace the floor or make any display of his worry, but his excitement was none the less keen edged.

He examined his revolver. It was a part of Megares' mocking gesture that he had not disarmed them. But he had taken good care to leave plenty of men to watch they did not escape. Soon now, if the plan of the women to reach the plane did not miscarry, the Lazy R riders would be starting on a long journey.

He heard the distant roar of the plane. He caught a glimpse of it diving northward. The dread lifted from his heart. They had made it. They were headed for safety at last. In a couple of hours they would be looking down on brown Arizona. If they got across the line Megares could do his worst. Then the door of the room opened, and Lee walked in to meet him.

From his throat leaped a cry of amazed distress.

"You failed?"

"No, we succeeded. Doris got away."

The eyes of the girl were startled. "There wasn't room for me."

"Not for you! Did Silver go and leave you here?"

"He wanted to stay. I wouldn't let him. Did you think I'd go and leave you here alone...you and my waddies...for Megares' to take vengeance on...after I'd brought you all here?"

He caught her by the shoulders. "My God, girl, do you realize what you've done?"

"With me here you'll have a better chance," she said simply.

"At your expense," he burst out. "Don't you see, Lee? He'll make you pay, too, for what we've done."

"Why shouldn't I, if it has to be?" she cried softly. "Why should you suffer alone? I couldn't go Jack...I couldn't...and leave you here."

He saw in her eyes the fire which is lit for only one man, and it struck a spark to the banked passion within him. He had asked to take her in his arms, this fine young creature who had grown into his life. He snatched her close, and body clung to body in mad sweet intimacy.

They forgot time, forgot the desperate plight in which they were. One certainly stood out, in a situation that made for many doubts. They had found each other. No sinister fate could rob them of that.

"Before I met you I used to think I must be the kind of woman who couldn't love," she confessed. "I met men, and each one was just another man. But when I met you, the very first time, I knew you were the man I wanted."

Looking down into her shining amber eyes, he laughed, her soft strong body in his arms.

"And I, do you think I wanted love...this kind of love, that possesses one? I was hard as nails. I knew all about women. I expected to lead a life of intelligent selfishness...that side of me, at least. A sort of Megares inside the law, one fitted to the social system...that is about what I intended, to play my own hand first and last."

Her fingers tightened on the muscles of his arm. (And even in that moment a fugitive subconscious joy raced in her at the feel of the flowing, rippling muscles which gave the motions of his body such a tigerish litherness.) That he loved her was still almost too precious to believe.

"I was all for myself too," she admitted. "I had to be first. Everybody had to know that I was boss. And now...I am all yours. What are you going to do with me?"

He came to earth. "First, I'm going to save you if I can. We were going to make a break to get away. But with you here..."

"Oh! I haven't told you yet. Harold is coming back with a big passenger plane to try to pick us up."

"When?"

"He may have to have it sent from San Diego or Los Angeles. He gets things done in a hurry. By tomorrow he'll very likely get back."

It occurred to Jack that tomorrow night might be too late, but he did not say so.

"He's going to bring a machine gun," she explained. "I told him to make a landing on the mesa. We are to reach the plane."

Swiftly his mind swept over the problem. With Silver and his machine gun, and five or six good fighting men by his side, the chance of escape would be far better than to try to make a run for it now. That is, if Megares left the cowboys free and did not take their arms. For himself, Jack knew that the savage impulse of the bandit would be to put him before a firing squad.

Another plan suggested itself to Hadley. If Lee, in her Mexican garb, could get out of the house again she might wait in the hills back of the mesa until Silver's plane arrived. Lee objected, instantly and with energy. She would not desert her lover. Staying, she would divide the blame and perhaps the punishment. If she went, too, the vengeance of the bandit would fall on Jack alone.

They argued the matter. Into the discussion walked the officer in charge of the soldiers at the rancho.

He gave his name as Lieut. Rodriguez.

"Where is Senora Silver?" he asked in Spanish.

Lee answered smiling at him. "We don't know."

"What do you mean you don't know?"

She too spoke in Spanish. "Mr. Silver arrived in an airplane and she has gone back with him in it to Arizona."

Rodriguez stared at her, aghast and shocked. The general had left her in his charge, had told him plainly that he was responsible for her safe keeping. If he had let her get away... But he would not believe it. They were making a fool of him, these gringos.

He called in soldiers and searched the house. They found Mrs. Silver's clothes, but they did not find the lady. Rodriguez was in a panic. He put Hadley and Lee in a locked room and guarded both door and windows, after he had first disarmed the male prisoner. A messenger was sent post haste to Megares with the news of the escape.

The situation of the two prisoners was precarious, but there was no despair in their hearts. If they were locked in a prison, at least the rest of the world was locked outside.

In the afternoon there broke upon them the sound of thunder. They listened.

"The big guns are booming," Jack said. "Must be a battle on. It has been due several days. Luna has been massing government troops. He ought to win, unless he is attacking prematurely."

Through the windows they observed the restlessness of the soldiers. They were as uneasy as quicksilver. They could not sit still but gathered in groups to talk excitedly.

Even the coming of darkness did not bring a cessation of the artillery fire. It became apparent that this was no skirmish but a major battle.

Juan lit the lamps and afterward brought in food for the prisoners.

Rodriguez came in before they had finished eating to tell them of his dispositions for the night. They were to be in adjoining rooms. The place would be well guarded and if they attempted to escape they would be shot. The officer treated them courteously but with a manner of hurt resentment. He seemed to feel that their confinement in Mrs. Silver's escape had been with deliberate intent to injure him. When he referred to it his voice quavered.

Jack poured him a glass of wine.

"Drink with us, lieutenant," he invited. "Happy days."

As they lifted their glasses the eyes of the lovers plumbed each into those of the other. They were drinking a pledge to the brave adventure that was to stretch down the years for them.

The Mexican officer drank, but there was no joy for him in the toast. He knew Megares too well.

"I am afraid," he confessed miserably.

"Why don't you slip away and go

She Lays Down Law—On Golf

Usually it's the father who lays down the law to his daughter, but in the Hicks family of Hewlett, L. I., Helen, the pretty 20-year-old daughter, establishes the law of what's what to her father—when it comes to golf. Here's Jarvis Hicks, prominent banker, getting tipped off to some valuable pointer in golf by his daughter. And why not? Isn't she the new women's national champion? We'll say!

And what a champ!

Jack had realized this. "Of what use?" he asked. "What is to be will be, unless by foresight and boldness you can avert it."

"I have a wife and a baby."

They were speaking in Spanish. "That is too bad," Jack told him gently.

"I am afraid," he confessed miserably.

How American Fashion Creator Is Winning Spotlight from Paris

Elizabeth Hawes Sees Skyscrapers as Fashion Sermons in Stone and Is Inspired to Introduce Styles Modeled After Cloud-Piercing Giants.

Do you see any relation between these charming gowns and the Empire State Building? According to Miss Elizabeth Hawes, the brilliant young American designer, skyscrapers are proving a definite inspiration for women's clothes. Above are two of her original models. The distinguished yet very wearable gown at the left is for dining at home. It is of black striped chiffon cut on extremely flattering lines. "Sir Galahad," at right, is of white chiffon over gold lace. The metal link belt is one of the new notes Miss Hawes sponsors. Heading her own establishment in New York, Miss Hawes is a petite and pretty Vassar graduate who startled the fashion world by exhibiting her own collection of original models in Paris.

Indian Contrast

The rich and the poor of India are illustrated in this picture of the meeting between Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader and champion of the poor and oppressed, and the Aga Khan, one of India's richest and most powerful princes, at the latter's hotel in London. Note the extremes in costume.

Miss Bennett is a popular Junior League of New Britain, Conn., while her husband-to-be has distinguished himself by winning several State and Intercollegiate golf titles. They'll be married in January.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeannette Young Norton

Let's Encourage the Leek!

When in doubt about a fresh vegetable salad, why not try leeks? They flourish in the winter markets, and can be used in many delightful ways. Just because they're a sort of onion need not deter the cook with an objection to that family, but a willingness to experiment. Leeks have not nearly so pronounced a flavor as onions, in fact, they have delicate texture and savor of their own.

"Use leeks as you would fresh asparagus, suggested a French housewife. "Less expensive, and a very pleasant substitute."

Leeks may be used instead of onion for flavoring soups and sauces, and in that case only one or two are necessary.

Leek Used as a Salad But if leeks are to be used as a salad or vegetable, then several bunches of fat stalks will be required. Good, fresh leeks have a small white knob at the base of a bunch of flat green blades, and all of this edible. To prepare for cooking, merely peel off the little whistery roots and outer skin, then cleanse the bulb and leaves under running water.

Throw the leeks into boiling salted water and cook until tender which will be about 15 minutes. If desired for salad, place the well-drained leeks in the refrigerator as soon as the have cooled off. At serving time place two or three leeks on a few lettuce leaves—romaine, endive or chicory are especially good combinations—and pour a generous amount of French dressing or a few spoonfuls of mayonnaise on each service.

Combined With Asparagus Or the cooked leeks may be placed in a shallow baking-dish, covered with cream sauce over which a few tablespoons of grated cheese are sprinkled, plus salt and pepper, and baked under a broiler until the cheese is lightly browned.

A simpler method of preparation is to drain the cooked leeks, put on individual, small hot plates, and add a few tablespoons of melted butter and lemon juice.

A combination vegetable dish of boiled fresh leeks and canned asparagus will make for freshness and flavor of an unusual quality.

Drain the asparagus, place in a shallow baking dish with alternate rows or layers of boiled leeks. Cover with a medium white sauce prepared as follows:

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1/2 cup hot milk
1/2 cup hot asparagus juice

Melt butter in a saucepan, and add flour, rubbing until a smooth paste is formed. Gradually add the hot milk and hot asparagus juice, continuing to stir constantly until thick and smooth. Then pour over leeks and asparagus and sprinkle the top with a few spoonfuls of fine crumbs and bits of butter. Bake in a moderate oven a few moments, until crumbs are browned.

That poor cataleptic needs only to realize that he is not a scarecrow, and this nation only needs to recover from its fright and realize that the end of the world has not come.

We have everything we ever had, and if we never get back those $10,000,000,000 lent to Europe, that won't ruin us. Ten billions represent only 10 per cent of one year's total income in the United States.

We haven't lost our farms, mines, lives, men or money.

What are we whining about? Why can't we go to work, manufacture, buy, sell, employ and accept the invitation of the world to be the world's banker?

England has had her 100 years of world dominance which began after the battle of Waterloo, and now retires for a rest. The next 100 years should be the greatest that this young nation, possessing everything in the world, but courage, has ever seen.

What do you think of "the league of nations to end war on earth forever," as you read the news from Japan?

Thirty-two Japanese warships are sent to Chinese ports, and skillful Japanese pilots, dropping explosives bombs, have killed 23 more Chinese, as a further warning.

The Japanese know, as do the other nations, how to make poison gas that would kill 230,000 as easily as 23, and that you will see proved, if real war starts.

The grand league of nations sits still, holding its breath, saying nothing.

The Japanese say their action is justified because a Japanese officer and two soldiers were killed by Chinese, and perhaps it is justified.

But in any case, it is not our business. We did not kill any Japanese or seize any Chinese city.

Yet, with Britain, Uncle Sam is investigating, meddling, while the league does nothing.

Why does not Uncle Sam attend to his own business? He has enough of it.

HOLY TRINITY ENGLISH LUTHERAN

East State st. at Woodland ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor. Nineteenth Sunday after Trinity. Sunday school 9:45. (Acts 16:22-34). H. E. Smith, Supt.

It is your attitude in life that really makes you what you are. It is not where you live, it is not with whom you live, it is you that decides what your estimate of life shall be. "Iron bars do not make a prison make," is more truth than poetry. There are prisoners who should enjoy the free air and unbounding liberty of life. They could be they do not. St. Paul could be in prison, but he was never a prisoner. He was a free man, through Christ Jesus. We need more people in this world who amid suffering and hardship and disappointment are able to find an abiding joy and peace. "It is the peace through God that passeth all understanding." Give us, O God, the attitude of faith and peace through our blessed Redeemer!

Morning worship, 11. Sermon, "Friends of God."

No one is poor, who has a friend. One is richer still who is a true and real friend. No price can be placed that is truly representative of the correct value of a friend. A friend is beyond price. When we transfer this statement to the Kingdom of our God, we need to multiply the force of the statement, a thousand times. The friendship of God is the richest and most precious bond that connects our lives with the eternal Kingdom.

God wants to be our Friend and will be more than that. He now desires that we be friends with Him. That implies that our daily living, thinking and speaking be up to His wishes. No friend of God will deliberately harm His Kingdom. No friend of God can be a hater of his fellowmen. No friend of God can be in league with sin and the powers of Satan. No friend of God can dwell in the land of darkness and unrighteousness and then expect to be called a perfect citizen of God's Kingdom. God wants us to be His friends. May His will be done.

All are cordially invited to attend these services.

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ. Scientist. for Sunday, October 11.

The Bible selections include the following verses from Isaiah (49:8, 11): "Thus saith the Lord, In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee: and I will preserve thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages. And I will make all my mountains a way, and my highways shall be exalted."

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Now," cried the apostle, "is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation,—meaning, not that now men must prepare for a future-world salvation, or safety, but that now is the time in which to experience that salvation in spirit and in life." ## President Hoover May Be Host To French-German Joint Delegation

Premier Pierre Laval of France Is Said to Have Requested Inclusion of German Statesmen in Invitation to White House for Conference on World Problems During October.

The unusual spectacle of German and French statesmen acting in concert for the common good may be witnessed in Washington, D. C., this month—if there is any truth in the rumor now going the rounds in Berlin. Premier Pierre Laval of France, who is visiting Germany with Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, is said to have communicated with Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to the United States, asking him to sound out the United States Government on its willingness to include Chancellor Heinrich Brüning and other German statesmen in the invitation which it sent to Laval to visit Washington this month to confer with President Hoover on international financial problems. This gesture may be another step towards cementing the two-believed irreconcilable nations in a bond of friendship. Laval and his conferees received a tremendous ovation when they arrived in Berlin. They were the first French statesmen to be received by President Von Hindenburg since the war and the friendly treatment accorded them in the German capital may have been the cause of the reported gesture of amity offered by France. Plans for the rumored joint delegation to the United States are believed to have been discussed at a dinner in honor of the French visitors given by Dr. Julius Curtius, Germany's Foreign Minister.

Salem High Upsets Dope To Outclass Warren Gridders, 13-7

GRIMES TO OPPOSE EARNSHAW IN FINAL WORLD SERIES BATTLE

Unexpected Strength Shown by Quakers; Score in 2nd Period

tion off-guard when he hurled a pass on a first down to Carpenter, the latter making it a first down on Warren's 12 as the period ended.

Beck tore around left end for five yards then on an end-around left end for five yards then on an end-around play, passed to Purn Sidinger who walked unopposed across the Hillmen's goal line. Keys was topped in his tracks on the try for extra point.

Two great runs by Steel and Davis, Warren sophomore backs, were features of the home team's offensive onslaught in this quarter but the Quakers braced when necessity demanded, then took the ball in their own territory on a fumble by Davis. Keys made three on the first play and Beck was given the ball for a smash through guard.

Beck Breaks Loose
It was a typical Ed Beck dash that followed—a mystifying mix-up of gridders where he entered the scrimmage and soon a lone figure was seen dashing and dodging through the Warren defense. On his way down the greenward in a sensational run that ended only when he was stopped by Hill's secondary defense on the half-foot line. The run was for 55 yards. From there it was a simple matter for Carpenter to feel his way through center for the score. Beck pace-kicked the extra point.

Sferro kicked off to Purn Sidinger who ran it back 15 yards to Salem's 45 to start the third period. Two line plunges and an attempted pass were frustrated and Beck kicked out of bounds on the 18. From there on Burkhardt almost single-handedly advanced the ball down the gridiron ending the great excursion with a six-yard plunge that carried him over Salem's goal for Warren's only touchdown. He added the seventh point on a trick play.

Carpenter received Sferro's kick-off and was stopped in his tracks. Beck, pulling back for a punt, dropped a perfect pass from Billie Corso and it was Warren's ball on Salem's 30. It was a splendid break for Hill's laddies but after short gains by Steel and Burkhardt, Wayne Sidinger tossed Canzonetta for a two-yard loss and Burkhardt was stopped.

Beck's long kick in the final period gave Warren the spiral in midfield and Burkhardt and Canzonetta combined talents for three long runs to bring the ball far into Salem's territory. There the Quaker forward wall resisted stubbornly, held the Hillmen without a yard and took the ball on downs. Beck again punted but a fumble by Burkhardt when he was hit hard by P. Sidinger and Erwin Beck gave Salem the pigskin.

Salem Threatens Again
The Quakers were penalized twice for off-sides but Beck advanced up the greenward 14 yards on a fine off-tackle play. Carpenter made it a first down but the Quakers were penalized 15 yards for holding. Beck's pass to Carpenter was good for seven yards and the triple-threat star added four, then punted out of bounds on the opponent's 25.

The Trumbull countians started a desperate forward passing attack with only three minutes left to play, lost more yards than they gained. Burkhardt, back on a fourth attempted aerial, was doimed on his own five-yard line by four Salem players and the Quakers took the ball on downs.

With ten seconds left to play Beck cracked center for a gain that brought the ball within six inches of a touchdown but the final gun, terminating the struggle, prevented a score.

It was Salem's third consecutive victory over a Warren opponent, bringing out unexpected power in the team as it out-battled and out-scored its rivals of 14 previous conflicts on the gridiron. The Quakers may have had the majority of breaks, but they came through their own doing; they took advantage of every opportunity, performed well on defense when a stout defense was necessary and played sensational offensive ball.

Keys, Fisher Star
John French and Norman Early, Salem varsity fullback and tackle, respectively, watched the game in roles of spectators. The former saw Keys play scintillating football for 40 hard minutes of fighting while Early, replaced by Fisher, watched the latter play the greatest game of his gridiron career while the latter, Corso and Raymond were also outstanding on defense.

The new Quaker used neither trick nor necromancy. He scorned the use of trick formations and was content to roll along with a momentum generated by fine blocking and hard running. Earnest interference was the big factor in making a success of the team's repertoire of plays while the forward pass was brought into use only when Quarterback Ed Beck thought its successful operation possible.

Gloom and pessimism which previously pervaded atmosphere in Salem headquarters disappeared as a result of the game. It was the upset of a decade and a great achievement for Coaches Floyd Stone and Frank Lewis.

Drilling Toward New Title?

Jack Dempsey, industriously training for a comeback in the squared circle, devotes a part of his preparation to drilling in the Champion Mines, at Mids, Nev., to strengthen his arms and legs. Here's the ex-heavyweight champ disguised as a full-fledged miner, with light-equipped cap and pneumatic drill. You'd hardly know it was Jack. After a month of this, Dempsey will swap his drill for a gloved fist which may feel like dynamite to Jack's opponents.

Buckeye League Tilts, Ohio State-Vanderbilt Duel Head Colorful Gridiron Schedule

(By Associated Press)

The Buckeye Athletic association race and Ohio State's intercollegiate engagement with Vanderbilt stood out among Ohio's gridiron skirmishes today.

Ohio U. Plays Dennison
Ohio university opened its defense of its two-year reign over the Buckeye conference by taking on Dennison's big red, while two new Indiana members made their first starts in the conference. Wabash was at Oxford to meet Miami and DePaul tangled with the University of Cincinnati Bearcats.

The Northwest Ohio conference competition began with Defiance battling at Findlay. Findlay, although champions last year, went into the game the under dog.

Of seven other games within the state today, four brought Ohio conference teams together. Capital invaded Marietta. Otterbein was pitted against Heidelberg's student princes, whose winning streak of 10 straight games was broken by Ohio Wesleyan last week. Baldwin-Wal-lace went to Hiram and Kent provided the season's first foe for the University of Akron.

Case Meets Carroll
Case and John Carroll opened Athletic relations at Cleveland with John Carroll a heavy favorite to win. Oberlin was host to Hillsdale, Mich., and R.O. Grande met Urbana.

Only two out-of-state games were scheduled. Ohio Wesleyan, mixing with Syracuse and Ohio Northern battling Kentucky State at Richmond, Ky.

Five of the week-end's games were played last night, with Wittenberg and Centre college of Kentucky battling to a scoreless tie at Springfield. Wittenberg, outweighed 11 pounds to the man, offset the difference with forward passing.

Xavier Beats Georgetown
Xavier had better luck with another Kentucky foe, Georgetown college, opening up in the second half to score a 14 to 0 victory. A 45-yard run around right end by Zeyher gave Muskingum a 7 to 0 triumph over Mount Union.

Kenyon tried a pass just once and it was enough to pave the way for a single touchdown which bested Ashland 7 to 2.

The University of Dayton flared had an easy time with Wilmington and ran up a 56 to 0 count. Bowling Green maintained its record of not having been beaten since 1929 by holding Western Reserve to a scoreless tie at Cleveland yesterday afternoon.

FREE SOIL, Mich.—The hobby of Anton Alexander, farmer, is the carving of miniature furniture designs from cattle bones. He exhibited more than 50 models at the Mason County Fair this year.

NORTHWESTERN, NOTRE DAME IN CHARITY CLASH

75,000 Spectators To See Day's Leading Battle At Chicago Field

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Fired to a fighting pitch unusual even in college football, Notre Dame and Northwestern threw up their battle lines on Soldier Field today for the struggle that may decide the national gridiron championship of 1931.

75,000 To See Game
Seventy-five thousand spectators, heeding the call of charity and the promise of a stirring battle, were expected to watch the two eleven clash for the second time in two years. To Notre Dame, the game was probably the most important of the year because the "Fighting Irish" were determined to run their victory streak to 21 games and bet, the great record of 20 straight, which was hung up by the Notre Dame eleven of 1919 and '20. Northwestern sought victory not only to keep its 1931 slate clean but to gain revenge for the two touchdowns licking absorbed last year.

On the basis of last year's victory and its large army of capable reserves, Notre Dame was the slight favorite today. The Wildcats were weakened by the loss of their star fullback, Red Russell, who injured his back in the Nebraska game a week ago.

Charity Only Sure Winner
Charity was the only certain victor as Northwestern advanced $100,000 from the receipts last winter to Governor Louis L. Emmerson's Illinois state unemployment fund.

The kick-off was scheduled for 2 p. m. central standard time.

BUSH RESIGNS AS SOX PILOT

Baseball's Hard-Luck Man Quits Trying To Make Chicago Winner

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Donie Bush, hard luck man of baseball, has given up the difficult task of attempting to make a winner out of the White Sox.

After two years during which injuries robbed him of what chances he had to lead the team into first division in the American League, the little Irishman turned in his resignation last night. His only comment was that he "didn't fit into the White Sox organization."

His resignation was accepted and the White Sox started looking around for his successor, who may be Urban "Red" Faber, the veteran White Sox pitcher.

Bush came to the White Sox in 1930 after he had resigned as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates. He had fine prospects during his first year but the jinx of injuries overtook him from the start and the team finished in seventh place. Last spring, hopes were even higher but his star pitcher, Teddy Lyons, and two of his best batters, Carl Reynolds and big Smead Jolley, sat on the bench or in a hospital most of the season. The blow sent the White Sox into the American League cellar.

Mackmen Again Rule Betting; Capture Sixth Game, 8-1, on Friday

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—The curtain that flashed back ten days ago on a vivid world series drama started fluttering down today, the play all but ended.

Six games the world champion Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Cardinals have played to capacity in the run of the play, a sensational presentation, yet today, the question of conqueror and conquered rested solely on the decision of one ball game, the seventh and last of the world series of 1931.

It came to an end as it began, one of the most exciting struggles in all the history of the annual fall battles.

Earnshaw Opposes Grimes

On one side was "Big Jarge" Earnshaw, the mighty right hand ace of Connie Mack's pitching staff saved by a daring bit of strategy for this one climax effort. Glaring at him across the stage, backed almost off the boards by tactical blunders as open to censure as Mack's gamble was to praise, stood bitter Burleigh Grimes, the embattled spit-ball veteran, his snarling, pugnaeous features bristling under a two-day growth of whiskers.

It was most fitting that these great right handers, each the hero of a two-hit masterpiece, should come down to the end of the final act locked in battle for the heroine's hand, the gold and glory of baseball's world champion.

There was another hero in the piece, too, although the brightness of his armor had dimmed a bit in the reverses every hero must meet before right can triumph and justice mete out its final award. He was John Leonard "Pepper" Martin, the wild wahoo, lionized, feted, presented with everything from a watermelon to a shotgun, all of which he would gladly swap today for a couple of those baseballs that came so easily in the first five games of the series.

Mack's Strategy Wins

It was just possible that "Pepper," the irrepressible, could throw off the shackles Robert Moses had placed upon his wrists and ankles yesterday in the Athletics 8 to 1 victory that ended the count at three games all and forced the series into a seventh game for the first time in five years. True drama is like that. And "Pepper" still hitting .571, the bat that broke up three of the six ball games and was a thunderous factor in two others, still swinging, can make or break the final act for the Cardinals.

Once more, in the rise of the A's back to a commanding position, it was the strategy of the 68-year-old Connie Mack, fighting desperately for his third straight championship, perhaps the final record of his 50 years in baseball, that turned the tide.

While the baseball world looked yesterday for the appearance of Earnshaw, the A's best bet to prolong the fight, Connie gambled with Grove, the southpaw, who won 31 victories in the American league last season, but who was touched for 23 hits by the Cards in two earlier games.

Street Loses Gamble
Gaby Street with two winning pitchers, Burleigh Grimes and the two-time conqueror of the A's Wild Bill Hallahan chose to send out Paul Derringer, the rookie, to do the work of a man. And for the second time in the series the right handed freshman cracked after a fine start, lost his control and what might have been the deciding game flew right out of Gaby's window by an 8-1 score.

Robert Moses rarely has been better than he was yesterday as he boomed his fireball down the alley, held the Cards to five hits, only two of them put together in the sixth for the only run the National league champions could score, and completely vindicated Connie's judgment. It was his second victory of the series, equalling his record for the 1930 world series. Earnshaw, the ace, likewise seeking his second conquest to match his work last fall, is a 2 to 1 favorite to do just that.

As Derringer crumpled and the Cardinal defense blew wide open, the Athletics, getting only eight hits off three pitchers, sort of let the Cards beat themselves with errors and bases on balls.

Wallingford Series Revival To Feature William Haines

Ernest Torrence, William Haines and Jimmy Durante in a scene from "New Adventures of Get Rich Quick Wallingford," appearing Sunday at the State theater.

Revival of the popular "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" series and the return engagement of Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Politics," are highlights of an attractive menu of talking picture attractions appearing at the Grand and State theaters next week. Two ranking pictures, "I Like Your Nerve" and "Personal Maid" end two-day runs at the playhouses today.

"The New Adventures of Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" come to the State Sunday for three days, marking the picture's first appearance in Ohio. William Haines, star of "Gigolo" and countless other synchronized productions, Ernest Torrence, Jimmy Durante and Leila Hyams are the featured players.

Haines is shown in the title role with Durante, one of Broadway's most popular comedians, taking the role of "Schnozzle." Others in the cast are Guy Kibbee, Hale Hamilton, Robert McWade and Lucy Beaumont.

"The Get-Rich-Quick" Wallingford series was first made famous on the silent screen a decade ago, starring Wallace Reid. Haines may be shown in similar talking pictures of the same series.

Showing three days, starting Sunday, will be George O'Brien's latest, "Riders of the Purple Sage," taken from Zane Gray's popular novel. Marguerite Churchill of "Last Flight" fame, Neah Beery and James Todd are shown in supporting roles.

Misses Moran and Dressler, Roscoe Ates and other popular Hollywood performers merge talents in "Politics," the picture that gained for the former comedienne greatest fame. It will be shown at the Grand Wednesday and Thursday.

Claudette Colbert, Herbert Marshall and Georges Metaxa are featured in "Secrets of a Secretary."
